

The Land Rover may not be going to Ukraine or the frontline any time soon, but it is being used as a test vehicle to help the British Army better understand the applications and constraints of vehicle

